DEMOCRATIC MEETINGS.

First Ward Democratic Club.

The First ward Democratic Club will meet at their accustomed rendezvous on Wednesday evening, March 4th, at 7½ o'clock. A full attendance is desired, as all the Democrats in the ward are requested to be present. WM. F. DUERSON, Secretary.

Seventh-ward Democratic Club.

The members of this club met last night, at the lecture-room of the Kentucky School of Medicine, on the Central market. It was determined that the club postpone the election of delegates to the Convention until March 14. No other business worthy of mention was transacted. As usual, the candidates were called upon, and delivered stirring speeches.

Our Supplement.

We venture to say there are but few newspapers in the West that print, in one day as great a quantity and variety of interesting and entertaining matter as we supply in our supplement this morning, furnished without extra charge to the readers of the COURIER. It contains no less than eighteen columns of tales, miscellany, news, gossip, politics, humor, poetry, correspondence, foreign correspondence (from Naples), and in fact, a little of everything that goes to make up a live newspaper. Much of the matter has been in type for days and weeks, and we take this method to relieve ourself of the accumulation.

The Supplement is published on our regular edition days. Sundays are not permitted to appear even in it.

Daniel Boone.

"Honor to the brave Old Pioneer
Columbus of our land"

Mr. Bozarth introduced a resolution into the Legislature Friday providing for repairing the defaced monument of Daniel Boone, and in so doing expressed the desire of every good Kentuckian who is acquainted with the early history of his State, for the early history of Kentucky is also the history of Boone. His services and daring exploits make thrilling and wonderful many pages and intertwine his name with every sketch of the "dark and bloody ground."

In his eloquent address at Boonesborough last Memorial month observed, "Oh! colonel Daniel Boone, it is not an enemy too much to say that without him, in all probability the settlements could not have been planted and the conquest of Kentucky might have been reserved for the emigrants of the 19th century."

Boone's name and great fame was not confined to the Western frontiers, but is as much separate with America and Europe.

It was in the glowing verses of commendation of General Boone backwoodsman of Kentucky.

that Lord Byron took occasion to sound the glory of Kentucky in poetic strains, and scarcely a State in the Union but her honored the memory of Boone in some appropriate manner. Scarcely a State but perpetuates his name in a "Boone county" and a "Boonesville."

Save Gov. Morehead "To him (Boone) has been assigned the principal merit of the discovery of Kentucky, and he filled a large space in the eye of America and Europe. Resting on the real advantages of his services to his country, his fame will survive when the achievements of men, greatly his superior in rank and education, will be long forgotten."

By all means let the Legislature see to it, that the monumental column a grateful State has reared to mark where rests the ashes she has claimed from another State, (that also revered them), and laid under the shadow of her capital to protect and honor, but which the sacrilegious or thoughtless hands of curiosity, or memento seekers, have defaced, be repaired and duly cared for.

Kentucky is too generous and noble, too proud and honorable to suffer desecration or neglect to mar the grave stone or the name and memory of those who helped to give her life and fame. She would be ungrate if she did. That, let none will ever save her from being. The pen of the future historian shall never bring that ignoble charge against her.

We repeat our commendation of Mr Bozarth for offering this resolution, and shall commend—and so will we all—the Legislature, when this good work shall have been done at its instance.

John A. Brooks—All a Mistake.

We are authorized by John A. Brooks, Esq., the Representative from Webster, to say that he is still a Democrat, adhering to the principles and measures of that party as essential to the welfare of the nation and the perpetuity of constitutional government and liberty. He requests us to say that he deeply regrets that in a moment of weakness he "put a devil in his mouth to steal away his brains," and that whilst in a state of irresponsibility he committed "the folly of declaring his adhesion to the abominable heresy of Radicalism, and even went so far as to send in his resignation on the alleged ground of a change of political sentiment.

No one can regret more deeply than Mr Brooks, now that his reason is restored to its empire, the unfortunate circumstances connected with this affair.

☞ Col. Milward, formerly the editor of the Lexington Radical paper, which has since merged into the Statesman, in his speech at the Radical convention last Thursday, said: "If it is creditable to be a Union man, I deserve some credit. If it is creditable to have been a Union soldier, I deserve some credit. And if it is creditable to be in favor of negro suffrage, I deserve still more credit!" It wanted not such declarations on the part of the Radical leaders to convince the people of Kentucky that the Radical party here, as elsewhere, is thoroughly committed to the abominable and debasing heresy of political negro equality.

☞ We would call the attention of the Democracy to the announcement of Wm. Grosscluse as a candidate for Police Commissioner. Mr. Grosscluse has long been recognized as a staunch and working Democrat, and as he is every way qualified for the position he seeks his claims should receive the consideration they are entitled to by the Democracy of the city and county.

☞ The trial of the parties at Frankfort accused of being concerned in the lynching of the negro, on the night of January 20, proceeded yesterday until 1 p. m., when further investigation was postponed to Wednesday next at 10 a. m. A full report of the investigation will appear in the COURIER.

☞ Any place that sells such villainous whisky as would make a good Democrat white under its influence, get up in a Radical meeting and give in his adhesion to that party, should not be allowed to have the capital a day longer. The Legislature should, as its first business to-morrow, take the case of Frankfort under consideration.

☞ The name of Col. Blanton Duncan we have heard mentioned as a candidate for Police Commissioner. He has a wonderful amount of energy and abundant capacity, and we know of no one who could be more efficient in making the "wheels" perform their duty.

☞ In one more week the Legislature adjourns. Believed, as we then will be of the important matter that has for several months past been crowding upon us from that quarter, we will be able to impart that variety to the COURIER that has been its character-ic feature.

☞ Notwithstanding the large quantity of matter our supplement enables us to publish this morning, yet several columns of very interesting correspondence and some articles we were anxious should appear, are unavoidably crowded out.

☞ A resolution was yesterday presented by Senator Cooke, and adopted by the Statesenate, providing for the appointment of a joint committee to investigate the affairs of the various insurance companies of the State.

The Report of the Impeachment Committee.

The committee on impeachment has reported ten charges against the President, all except one based upon the removal of Stanton. The tenth charge is that he still refused to get down, Tommy to obey his orders instead of those of General Grant. It is thought that the committee have not dared, as it was supposed they would, to embody any of the old charges upon which they have so long been threatening impeachment in their speculations. They however, reserve to themselves the right to add any additional charges during the pendency of the trial they may see proper. This leaves the door open for anything that may turn up.

☞ The state senate yesterday adjourned over from Friday till the close of the session on Tuesday next as well as Wednesday and Thursday. A resolution to this effect was introduced by Senator Cooke, and adopted.

☞ Mr. R. Page, an old and well known citizen and a most worthy gentleman, is a candidate for Police Commissioner. He is well qualified and worthy.

Theater Edwin Forrest The Gladiator

The fear of Mr Forrest's appearance on Monday night drew a crowded house last night to witness the performance by the entire company. There was no falling off in the audience. There were but few vacant seats in the dress circle, and the parquette was filled to its utmost capacity. The entertainment consisted of the melodrama entitled Lear. The scene opened down upon Rome and Caesar was crowned a power and he only who could pull it down. The scene was the conspiracy against Caesar, and the assassination of the Roman Senate. Caesar, who was to be murdered, was played by Mr. Forrest, and he was the central figure of the scene. The assassination of Caesar was performed in a most masterly manner. The dispersion of the conspirators, after the deed was done, was also a fine piece of acting. The scene closed with the dispersion: one could hear boards and drop, and the conclusion of the scene called forth the loudest applause. Mr. Forrest was great as Lear that no comparison can be instituted between him and any other actor now on the stage. Mr. Morosco might be will appear as Spartacus in the Gladiator, a play on the style of his own. The who have seen Mr Forrest in this character and those who have not are earnestly desirous of witnessing the performance, and we expect to see a crowded house on Monday night.

Shooting Affray Last Night.

While a party of four men were drinking at the sitting room of the Old Pioneer saloon on 4th street, between Jefferson and Main, about the 9 o'clock last night, some words passed between two of them named Samuel Scott and Pat McDonald. Without any information whatever, McDonald drew a pistol and shot at Scott, one ball passing through his hat. Scott then drew a pistol and shot at McDonald, the ball passing through the latter's left eye and penetrating the brain. McDonald fell to the floor, and was picked up dead. Scott was arrested and committed to jail. It was ascertained that the wound did not prevent the latter from the slightest intimation of difficulties had manifested itself as he left our most rigid and prudent citizens. Scott is also a house over the same premises.

A Runaway Couple.—A runaway couple from the lower part of this county passed through our city on Saturday last, en route for Indiana, where the two days and with the intention of getting married. The young man in case will be modern and when asked why a young girl should be better off if the ceremony had been performed sooner or later. The parents of the latter consented, but the governor of the state line (about wouldn't permit. He said they wanted to get married all right, but he would not come to the clerks office and have them legally licensed. Of course the license could be procured, and we encouraged the couple on to Cincinnati, at which place they expected to have all danger removed by a hasty wedding.

☞ Col. Reed Bates, Commissioner of Agriculture from Frankfort on Saturday evening, on his way to Cincinnati on the day before and returned to-day before the time to wear a great deal of light will be thrown upon that mob transaction. The case will be considered next week. Governor Stevenson, Colonel Woodford and others of the most prominent citizens of Frankfort have been subpoenaed to appear as witnesses.

☞ The Sabbath school of the M. E. church south, of this city, will hold a mass meeting in the church on Green street, between Brook and Preston, on Sunday afternoon, at 3 o'clock. Addresses will be delivered by Rev. J. H. Linn, of the Broadway church, and Hon. S. P. Chase, of the Female High school.

☞ Our various Democratic clubs are growing in numbers. Some of so large as to be unable to find suitable room in which to accommodate them. At the meeting of the Ninth Ward club last night 30 new members were received.

Young Men's Christian Association.

The regular monthly meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association will be held in the rooms on this evening, which the members are requested to attend. The exercises will begin at eight o'clock precisely.

☞ To-day is the fourth Sunday in the month, and as we have been exempted the last two days we not been of a chance to attend to inspect our mantle lacking.

Board of Trade Meeting.—There will be an important meeting of the members of the Board of Trade Rooms on Monday evening, at the usual seven o'clock.

☞ Yesterday was the first day of winter and during the afternoon we had quite a respectable little snow storm—the last we hope of the season.

☞ Lettuce and radishes have been quite abundant in our market for some weeks past.

Stock Sales.—The following are the sales of stock made at Elias Lee's sale stables on the west side of Brook street between Main and Market, from Feb 24th to 29th, inc.

Radicalism in Kentucky.

The Radical politician is sometimes a fanatic, often a demagogue, and frequently both the one and the other. Those who in the frenzy of political insanity are for pressing boldly forward regardless of consequences, while they are decidedly more entitled to respect than the hypocrites and politicy men of the party, are far less dangerous. The original abolitionist, he who declared the Constitution of the United States "a covenant with death and a league with hell," and sought to destroy our system of government because it recognized the institution of slavery, is infinitely a better man, and a more reliable guide in political matters than the demagogue that is endeavoring tortuously to secure the same object by a show of false colors, and an affectation of principles foreign from those known to constitute the basis of his party.

It is hardly necessary for us to observe that the ends of the demagogue have been, and are, freely employed in this State earlier where in the effort to advance the interests of the Radical party. Here an attempt has from the first been made to disguise the Radical Montanna with the veil of conservatism.

It is perfectly understood that our people are unalterably opposed to any change in the character of our government, and therefore Radical orators and organs have pretended that no such thing was proposed by their party. In Kentucky Radical politicians perfectly comprehend the fact that nothing like centralization would be tolerated by the people, and therefore it has been insisted upon, in the face of light and knowledge, that the Radical party advocated no real or vital change in the old constitutional government. In Kentucky the Radical demagogues thoroughly appreciate the fact that the people can never be brought to indorse negro suffrage and political negro equality, and therefore it has been strenuously contended that the party was committed to nothing of the sort. In Kentucky it is fully comprehended that the people are for the restoration and maintenance of the old Constitution and the old Union, and therefore it is that Radical leaders here have sedulously endeavored to produce the impression that the Radical party was par excellence the conservator of the Constitution and the preserver of the Union.

This may be all very well for Radical politicians, but it will scarcely have the desired effect upon Kentucky voters. Kentuckians, though a straightforward and simple-minded people, are not devoid of intelligence, as these scheming gentlemen seem to think them. They know that the Radical party contemplates negro supremacy for the South, and negro equality in the other States, and it is an insult to their understanding to be told that it is otherwise. They are fully aware that the Radical policy is without any reference to the Constitution, and that it is subversive of republican institutions, and it is a mere waste of time and breath to tell them that it is not so. The people of Kentucky are no fools, that after seeing the legislation of Congress in regard to the Southern States they should be persuaded that the Radical party is not a party opposed to constitutional government, a party of negro suffrage and despotism.

We were rather entertained than otherwise the other day at some of the proceedings of the Radical State Convention. There delegates played the role of demagogues with all the will in the world, but most clumsily. In the first place the convention called itself a convention of "the Union party," and then every thing done by it showed that it was as far as possible from being a Union party. It indorsed Congress, although it is notorious that Congress has practically dissolved the Union and kept it dissolved ever since the war. Members of that convention had a great deal to say about the Constitution, pretending that the object and purpose of the party was to maintain that Constitution, inveterate against the attacks of Democratic assailants, when everybody knows that the chief issue upon which Democrats are contending against the Radicals is the preservation of constitutional government, the former favoring, and the latter opposing. But perhaps the most absurd part of the entertainment was the action of the convention with reference to negro suffrage. Now it is known that the people of Kentucky believe in the supremacy of the white race, and that with them negro suffrage and political negro equality are at an immense discount, and it is equally well understood that the Radicals are committed to the fullest extent to such abominable heresy.

What did the Frankfort Convention do in view of this state of the case? In the first place they indorsed the negro supremacy and negro equality legislation of Congress, because as Radicals they were obliged to do it, and then they tried to save themselves and party by failing to enunciate any distinct proposition on the subject. It is said that the ostrich, when pursued, conceals its head and deceives itself with the idea that the whole body is out of view, and the Kentucky Radicals have taken that same tiled for their prototype. They indorsed Congress, and their speakers were squarely out for negro suffrage, and yet they seem to think people do not know they are fully committed to negro suffrage merely because they did not say so in express terms.

We said at the beginning of this article that some Radicals were fanatics, others demagogues, and that a few united both characters. We don't think the Kentucky Radicals fanatics. Fanatism presupposes sincerity, whereas the Kentucky Radical, as a rule, is the most insincere, and hypocritical of men. He is a Radical for the reason that, sufficiently enough, he has taken up an idea that the Radical will be the winning side, such being his actuating motive, he diligently sets to work to deceive the people with far more good will than success.

Old Time.

Relics

when

"YUBA DAM."

A Diffident Expression of Various Opinions.

To the Editor of the Louisville Courier.

STATUTE!

It may be that it was mere chance "Dora" and I being taken with the influenza at the same time, but I shall always have my opinion about the coincidence. Nor was my first newspaper love, I met her in the columns of the wisdom Saturday's gazette, then edited by an Irish gentleman of high literary attainments named H. Michael Mc'Carty, who to non-subscribing housewives, rabbits and tax-payers gone on his farm to Bullitt county. I thought then that she wrote the most bewitching letters I ever read, and time has not effaced the boyish fancy. For a long time I lost sight of her and refused to be comfortable, but confidence of bonds and character, I drew myself away until I finally became an editor. The round dozen and heartless flattery I received from attentive contemporaries belonging to the other party aroused my bad temper, and mortified me that she was something else to love her.

The said that she was the conqueror love. But O believe it not!

I confess that I had forgotten or silent "Dora" until she burst upon my astonished vision in the columns of the Courier. Here I began to have queer feelings, and symptoms and vagaries and various games of that sort, which finally came to a head mineland culminated in infatuation, &c.

Dora's immediate accident of her troubles did me some good, but what is the name of wonder does she mean when she talks of "Wells golden locks," "sun flake shadow," and "day rose beam?" Such things may be very good for the toothache, but they didn't help my complaint any. But perhaps after all it's only a little advice, that wants a little acute.

VALENTINES.

St Saint Val, reckons that place where brimstone is esteemed a good article of fuel; it will be because cheap wood cuts everything in verse when he favored valentines. Just think of an untaught, all by himself receiving about a peck of those moon-faced caricatures on the human form, with their horrible boots and unaccountable stomachs, all supposed to look like him. Gee! shall never forget. It represented a room. In a bed lay a female figure (not nature), with its mouth open. Waiting the door was a cadaverous man, arrayed in a single garment, holding at arm's length a something that looked like a frog. Under it was written in a girl's handwriting, "Yuba senior and junior." Bah! And I had been taking medicine, too! I wonder if it would be wicked to say, "confound her picture?" I forwarded the abomination to G. Washington Brooks, who seems to have a taste for ready-made families.

SOMETHING BETTER.

But then your soul, I did receive a few valentines, and a notes of condolence, which at a very moderate estimate, would pay a man for being sick a year. I should like to say something about some of those, but I am diffident in the presence of wit and beauty, and you gather about you such a circle of charming ladies every Sunday morning, that I am afraid to open my mouth lest I should display my awkwardness. Besides, some ugly people have a habit of misconstruing what I say, which is to say the least disagreeable. And then there is always a big brother who is smart enough to discover some hidden meaning in each common place sentence. I will leave it to all the ladies present, if a big brother is not the biggest nuisance in the world. To be sure he is, and the next biggest is a little brother that never gain sleepy.

That the society of ladies has a very refining influence is evidenced in my own case. From a Lorenzo Dowish sort of a contributor who didn't care a cuss what he said, I is that I am refining into a sentimental dandy. I have to look at every word twice, and it has to pass some ones as examination as this: "I wonder if somebody" I hope and be satisfied now I would turn her nose up at that? Dear, darling Dora might not like that. What will Hannah think! Kitty Katt will claim me good if I say that, the saucy little cuss!" So I draw a black mark over the condemned word and substitute a cream cheese adjective. I can't say a swear word, and I am afraid to tell a lie for fear I may never be President.

And then "Katie Bidd" compliments me by intimating that I may possibly belong to her sex. I wish I did belong to one of them. If I were a nice little woman I should know what to do. It was not my fault that I am not, and I hope the mistake will be overlooked when I assure my intention of being the next best thing, i. e. as near one as possible.

Moreover, there is Agnes Leonard. Well she is too small to live. She talks as oracularly about a man as though she had made one or two of the creatures. That she has a well grounded contempt for my person of sex is too evident. It is further evident that she has formed her opinion of the entire gender from what she knows of a few feeble specimens who go to the Legislature. For one I protest against being measured to that half bushel. She need not take her Procrustean bed at me, for I never will consent to have my capabilities, be they what they may, lopped off to the dimensions of those persons who are eternally talking about "my people." No doubt "Agnes" had rare fun with them, which is all very well, but it is not very wise for her to do so. "The masculine mind" and lay it away as rubbish, because she had those statesmen hopping around her with their hearts in their mouths.

I saw one of her victims the other day—a blue-eyed Junkin—and I never saw a man nearer dead of a woman. "O, her eyes, her eyes, her sunny beauty, her silvery laugh, and her dear delightful everything else!" Thinking to divert his mind from the distracting theme, I showed him the picture of Mary Jane. He looked at it with a vacant sort of a stare and said "O we, pretty, very pretty as things go but compared with Agnes she M. J. would not make a pretty peanut woman."

I did not kill him, partly because I had no pistol, and partly because I pitied him. I set him down for a second edition of "Vanquished," bound in calf.

Speaking of stars, Mr. Editor, how happened it that a man of your nice discrimination suffered a great straddle bug of a man to get into the Courier, a few weeks ago, in the garb of "Mary Jane?" Did he suppose her delicate drapery could conceal his awkward gait. He betrayed himself a thousand ways—in his compound words, which he mouthed as if they were hot dumplings—in his coarse allusions to myself, and in a particular manner in his extremely manish way of reconciling a lover's quarrel.

Thou wears petticoat, doff it for shame,
And hang a dog-skin on those gangling limbs.

PASSIONAL FOR TWO.

In answer to the many kind inquiries received by mail concerning my affair with Mary Jane, I take this opportunity of saying that the situation remains unchanged. She tells me that is certain fate that keeps us in a couple of houses, but my opinion is, that our happiness is stranded on a bridal trousseau, or rather the lack of one. Mary J. was born of rich but respectable parents, but her father is one of those rich men who never has any money to spare from his business, and who thinks his family in their necessary expenses, to say nothing of luxuries like to be met at all romantic. On the contrary he has a Dam disobeying look about the eyes, and his countenance suppresses about as much sentiment as a hog's jaw. Instead of investing his money in a son-in-law that would double every year, the old pelican buys cotton and bank stocks. Hence it is my belief that M. J. can't get money enough from her patrons to buy a bride' trousseau. I hate of to talk to take her with nothing, but she won't. I don't believe a girl would marry at all, took days, were it not for the bridal trousseau, the wedding cake and glass, and the pas eb soid, wooden ta, plated ware, gold and diamond wedding rings were originated to patrol engaged N. York.

"Jennie Jane" will have more to answer for than she is aware of. Since her famous techni letter wherein $100 was stated to be the lowest sum for which a bride outfit can be had, marriages have fallen off fifty per cent. And then she used the names of the fixings—a thing I never would have dared done, even had I known them. Nobody that one stated the number of each required to make a woman happy, and all as the prices thereto. So many what you call ums of long cloth with ruffles! So many thingumys with embroidered heads and a wide lace or ariddon with strings and straps which for aught I know may be intended for a strait jacket for he bride groom. Of all the ludicrous something a wedding is the most part of the expenditure is, without doubt, the most ridiculous. After they leave the heads of the ceremonies they are never gazed upon by mortal eyes unless they happen to be caught dangling from a clothes line. The happy case for whose encounter are all the doors to compound to be intruded upon not till a trunk can be fetched for at least three weeks after. By that time they are carefully packed away in the bottom of a trunk, and the dusted are purchased by some poorer dressing, because it is so near. [illegible]

Larkin's Universal Tariff Book.—Mr. B. F. Carroll, 91 Third street, has just issued a new edition of this valuable little book. We examined it and find it recently been adopted as a text book in several academies. It is useful to everybody, whether scholar, teaching, mechanics, professional, or business men; in fact, we do not know where a dime can be so profitably spent as in purchasing this little work. All our book dealers keep it.

☞ Read German's poetry.

A WANT SUPPLIED.—Our merchants and business men generally, in the vicinity of Main and Third streets, have long felt the want of a Broadway lunch house, where hot coffee and a cold snack could be procured at any hour of the day. Such an institution has been established by Mr. Berry, an accomplished gentleman, who is admirably adapted to his business. We congratulate him on his good fortune in securing the services of Mr. George Wilson, a young man thoroughly versed in the art of catering to the taste of the public, and whose genial and polite manners have won for him hosts of friends in his native city. This fine saloon and lunch house is located on Third street, in the basement of the fine building on the corner of Main and Third. We can vouch for the quality of their luncheon, wines, liquors, and cigars.

☞ Attention is called to the advertisement of "Old Louisville Bonanza." A meeting is called for Wednesday evening next, the 4th inst., at Washington Hall.

A NEW POLEY.—THE ONLY TRUE AND RIGHT WAY OF ELECTIONEERING.—J. L. ON THE DEATH OF MR. JOHN G. SCHWING.

The following lines were composed on the death of our aged and venerable father Johan G. Schwing, by Miss Lizzie C. Schwing, which was sung by him and worshipped with him at the same congregational altar

"He left asleep in deeps on the 5th of February, 1868. W. k.

Pearly gates, pearly gates, open wide,
A silver haired pilgrim steps into the tide,
He's walking the golden streets in his hand,
His steady gaze fixed on the Beautiful Land!

A mist falls it shadows the long traveled shore
But the eyes of his soul see the bright things before,
The angels, the transport, the rest are the lines,
The joy of that world for the effort of this.

The billows roll higher, he's nearing the shore
His steady eye fixed on the bright things before
He supported and strengthened, and cheered and sustained,
Behold him, behold him, the bright shore is gained!

The jasper walls glister, the gates open wide,
The music, the transport, the welcome inside,
Safe entered in glory, with Jesus his friend
A bright immortality, ever to spend!

O seraph band, seraph band, beautiful throng,
Who have waited to greet him, have waited so long,
We yield to your love, ye have waited unaware,
And now be waits with you for us who pilgrim stay

But seraph band, seraph band onward we come,
We are nearing the Jordan and soon we'll be home.
O cross as with him who has passed on before
To the home of the blessed, the beautiful shore.

Inflammatory Speeches—The Radical Speakers Badly Scored—Arrest of a Murderer—An Obdurate Judge—Man Drowned.

[Special Dispatch to the Louisville Courier.]

Nashville, Feb. 29.—A Radical meeting was held in Murfreesboro to-day, at which Messrs. Bosson and Elliott members of the Legislature, made speeches

According to report both speakers indulged in such inflammatory language as to bring about a fight, in which several persons were wounded When the firing first commenced, it is said that Elliott and Bosson at once took to their heels All was quiet at last accounts.

A man named Bainbridge, who committed murder sometime since in Kentucky, and for whom a large reward had been offered, was arrested here to-day on a requisition of Governor Stevenson

A mass meeting of citizens opposed to Congressional usurpations will be held at Odeon rooms to-night.

Judge Adams, of Chattanooga, has heretofore steadily refused to allow negro jurors in his court, on the ground that he had not received a copy of the act, authorizing blacks to sit on juries. Yesterday some negroes presented the Judge with an official copy of the law, when his honor promptly decided that no more jury cases should be tried at the present term of the court.

A few miles from Columbia on Friday, Craig Cockrell, while endeavoring to cross Duck river, was drowned by the upsetting of a skiff.

NEW ORLEANS.

Hancock Reiterates his Request to be Relieved—Ex-Street Commissioner Baker—The Capital Removal Question.

[Special Dispatch to the Louisville Courier.]

New Orleans, Feb 29.—It is stated on good authority that Gen. Hancock has reiterated his request to be relieved of command in the Fifth Military District.

The visit of Gen. Grant's aid, Gen. Porter, to this city has reference to the recent removal and indictment of Street Commissioner Baker. One of Baker's deputies, who is also under indictment, is in Washington endeavoring to procure a revocation of the order of removal It is not impossible that this monstrous plan may succeed, and that Baker may, under the plea of loyalty, regain his office, and avoid further prosecution.

The everlasting convention met to-day as usual and adjourned over to Monday again. The article locating the State capital at Baton Rouge was amended so as to retain it at New Orleans. There are not yet no prospect of a termination of the farce.

Arrived—Continental, from Cairo; Emma No. 3, from Cincinnati.

Departed—Pauline Carroll for St. Louis, John Kilgore, for Louisville, Silver Spray, for Cincinnati.

CAIRO.

Steamer Paragon Sunk—Boat and Cargo a Total Loss—Accident to the Kate Hart.

[Special Dispatch to the Louisville Courier.]

Cairo Feb 29.

The Paragon, on her way to St. Louis, this morning, at 5 A. M., struck the wreck of the Jas. Montgomery, at Devil's Island, and sank in a few moments in water covering her cabin floor. The boat is badly twisted and no doubt the boat and cargo will prove a total loss. No lives lost. The passengers came on the Post boy to Cape Girardeau.

The Kate Hart blew out both cylinder heads at Fort Smith yesterday

CHICAGO.

Wisconsin Senate Investigated.

[Special Dispatch to the Louisville Courier.]

ARTICLES OF IMPEACHMENT

Washington, Feb. 29.—The House committee have reported articles of impeachment. There are ten charges, all but the last based on the removal of Stanton and alleged violation of the Tenure-of-office bill. The tenth charges the President with endeavoring to induce Gen Emory to obey his orders and not those of his superior officer, Gen. Grant, and to violation of law.

THE DEBATE

The debate on the articles of impeachment was similar to that on the impeachment question last Monday There was a little personal episode in which Boer, of Illinois spoke of the dispatch of Governor Oglesby, of Illinois, as emanating from a drunken Governor Ingersoll counseled it as a needless and in his opinion the Republican party had no lack of leaders. Knights of the Golden Circle. Boer said it was a falsehood upon Morgan, of Ohio who was among those who denounced the course of the Radicals. He did not think the country needed leaders who lately voted to restore Stanton were competent to sit to judgment on the President.

A VOTE TO BE TAKEN ON MONDAY

The debate will close Monday, and the vote be taken on the articles at 4 P. M.

THE MANAGERS.

Also that no private persons will be elected by but let as managers of the impeachment House in the trial before the Senate

A CHEERFUL ARTICLE

Promulgation of impeachment articles has not strengthened the position of impeachers. The tenth article is spoken of as puerile and contemptible by men at both parties, and may weaken out by a vote of the House. A Radical Senator said no night he was astonished that men of reputed intelligence in the committee could have consented to an invention so weak that it was beneath criticism It is not believed in well-informed circles that the Senate dare convict the President on any such charges.

THE LEAGUE OF THE TRIAL

The majority in the Senate will adopt rules to facilitate the speedy trial but a month or more will be consumed therein.

THE WRIT OF QUO WARRANTO

which it is understood has been ordered to be applied for by the President, to compel Stanton to come into court and show by what authority he retains possession of the War Department was not applied for to-day. It is held by the friends of the Government that it cannot be applied for except in open court and the court adjourned at noon.

A SPITEFUL ATTEMPT

Senator Thayer, of Nebraska, tried to raise a little spite against Gen Thomas by introducing a bill to abolish the office of Adjutant General of the army. It was returned and will not pass.

ED GOV FORD.

formerly of Ohio, is thought to be dying to night of intemperance. The temperance cause will sustain one of its most valued champions.

REFUSE TO HONOR THE PRESIDENT

An effort will be renewed in secret session by the Radicals to bind the Senate not to hold official communication with the President pending his trial. The attempt failed utterly yesterday but Howard, Sumner and Conway may yet carry this point remains master of the war office, and no attempt as Thomas has made no further demand for it

STANTON

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Stanton has decided that Kentucky shall enjoy the privilege of the freedmen's bureau no longer

THE YOUNG-MCKEE CONTESTED SEAT

Young, member elect for the Ninth Kentucky District, returns to Kentucky immediately. His case is practically ended as the committee will report against either him or McKee taking their seats

Cayoso Bank Statement—Fatal Quarrel—Negro Majority.

[Special Dispatch to the Louisville Courier.]

Memphis, Feb. 29.—The defunct Cayoso bank statement shows over half a million dollars due depositors. There will not be over ten cents on the dollar realized on the assets.

A difficulty originated about private matters at Stanton's depot last night between Major J. H. Hicks and a planter named Maxwell. It resulted in Maxwell's shooting Hicks, killing him. Hicks soon in turn shot Maxwell with a gun, mortally wounding him.

Conservative negroes are planned registration in many cases. There are 300 more negroes registered than whites

Georgia Convention.

Atlanta, Feb. 29.—The Convention resolved unanimously to request Congress to make a liberal appropriation for building an air line railroad from Atlanta to Charleston.

A motion to adjourn sine die was lost. A motion to reconsider the action yesterday relative to taking a resolution endorsing the course of Congress in reference to impeachment, was lost. Yeas 69 nays 67.

Mr Bahrmann moved that the Convention adjourn to meet on the third Tuesday in May, and remain in session as long as necessary for the protection of loyal foreigners and the Congress of the United States. It will probably adjourn on the 15th of March.

Virginia Convention.

Richmond, February 29—The convention was engaged in the discussion of the following question. A vote will be taken Monday.

Louisiana Convention.

New Orleans, Feb 29.—The convention adopted the article of the constitution returned by the special committee to-day. A resolution introduced two days ago authorizing the printing and binding of 10,000 copies of the constitution.

Mississippi Convention.

Jackson, Feb. 29.—A resolution was offered in the convention last night and referred to the proper committee, setting forth the old charges against McClain and the additional charge of fraudulent participation in the Clinton. Nothing of importance done to-day.

MONTGOMERY.

Conservative Convention Called.

Montgomery Feb. 29.—The Conservative Executive Committee called a convention of the white people of Alabama without distinction of old political parties, opposed to negro dominion and Radical misrule, at Montgomery the first Monday in April to take such action as may be necessary for co-operation with the National Democratic party in the approaching election for President and Vice President

They also appointed a Committee to proceed to Washington to remain there as long as necessary to represent the political sentiments of the people and keep friends at the North advised of the state of affairs in Alabama.

The names of the Committee are Percy M Keese, J. J. Isbell, Lee Perkins, H. H. Randell and John Forsyth.
